

Cross-ownership of media should be prohibited. We need the widest possible range of sources of information in order to make intelligent contributions to our political process. Even with your current rules, our domestic media presented a slanted (to the right) view of the Iraq conflict. Internet access to foreign sources brought some balance to the situation - a balance which is only beginning to show up here.